

First Podcast Episode Template

Don't know what to say in your first podcast episode? Just follow this template!

1: Introduction

Start with a warm and welcoming introduction. Introduce yourself, your podcast, and the topic of the episode. Share a brief overview of what listeners can expect from this episode and from your podcast in general. Choose a memorable music intro.

---

---

---

---

---

2: Personal Story or Background

Share a personal story or your background related to the topic to create a connection with your audience. This can help establish your credibility and build rapport with your listeners.

---

---

---

---

---

3: Main Content

Now get into the main content of your episode. This can include discussions, interviews, storytelling, or any other format that aligns with your podcast topic. Stay focused and organized, and avoid rambling or going off-topic. Consider adding background music to set the right mood.

---

---

---

---

---

4: Tips, Insights, or Something of Value

Provide value to your listeners by sharing tips, insights, or valuable information related to your topic. This can be the main takeaway or actionable advice that your listeners can implement in their lives.

---

---

---

---

---

5: Conclusion and Call to Action

Finally, wrap up your episode with a concise summary of the main points discussed. Thank your listeners for tuning in and invite them to stay connected with you for future episodes.

---

---

---

---

---

6: Outro

End your episode with a professional and friendly outro. Include your podcast name, website, and social media handles for listeners to follow or contact you. A short outro sound will help with the brand recognition.

---

---

---

TunePocket.com

Unlimited royalty-free music for videos, podcasts, guided meditation, affirmations, and commercial use.

